

Women are Muffins & Men are Pop-tarts

It was late one night during finals week. My roommate, Suzi and I needed sleep...desperately. Instead, we had a deep discussion about men and came to the conclusion that men are just like pop-tarts. We were waiting while ours toasted. Soon, they would pop up out of the toaster!

This is not a scientific theory. In fact, it may seem a little silly. Mike was confused when I told him that he was my pop-tart.

Muffins are sweet! When you make muffins, you mix everything together and then it bakes. Once a muffin is baked, you can eat it right away or wait until it cools. They are even good the next day.

Pop-tarts have a sweet filling, but the outside is not sweet. They have to toast or the filling tastes yucky. But, you have to eat pop-tarts right away or they taste yucky again.

Once all the ingredients are there for a girl to be a godly wife and mother, she is ready (baked). Now, it's just a matter of God's timing. She just waits on Him and her pop-tart.

But a man is different. It has to be the perfect timing for him to get married—otherwise he's just a mess to live with. He needs to be in God's toaster, so that he's sweet inside. So, girls wait until he's done toasting—don't rush him or God!
